A total of 126 proposals were reviewed for the academic year 2013-2014. One hundred and two proposals were reviewed in the fall, and twenty-four proposals were reviewed in the spring. It was quite hectic in fall 2013 but began to wind down in spring 2014. It was another rewarding year for the curriculum committee. Details are posted on the Curricula Portal in the Hawaii Community College website.

Several Curriculum Central training sessions were given to faculty members. We have started to transition to Curriculum Central in fall 2012 for course modifications and new course proposals. In fall 2013, course deletion was added to curriculum central. Part of the current paper forms and procedures will still be followed until the curriculum specialist transfers all other Hawaii CC curriculum proposal functions to Curriculum Central. It might take a couple of years for the transition to be completed. Meanwhile, a new development in the curriculum proposal area is the beginning design of a new module to the Quali system for electronic submission of curricular proposals. All UH campuses are involved in contributing to the basic design of this system. The whole UH system will switch to this new system when it is created in a year or so.
